

4-28-2024

Rodger White

Write

Writing is used to express ideas. A change of ideas is occurring. Writing is used to store information, order authority, share stories, formally present articles, offer instruction. Writing may provide direction with leaders. Francis Scott Bacon wrote, "Read, not to contradict or convolute, nor believe or take for granted, nor to find talk or discourse, but to weigh and consider." (Francis Scott Bacon, Of Essays, 1625.) Leaders are able to influence better expressing their ideas in writing. Writing expresses important order to offer influence with official articles. Writing exposes important ideas to influence the quality of information.

In order to weigh is a use of how writing was originally intended. Since ancient civilizations writing is used to provide measurements made by chemists and architects, who corroborated to build infrastructure. To consider what's in writing is featured expressiveness of the author's article.

With articles of writing offer expression of ideas made to weigh and consider.

Writing exposes dialogue. Writing may be utilized to express ideas using Francis Scott's Bacon's advice in order to offer dialogue with readers who "weigh and consider." Connecting with the importance of meaningful dialogue may be ordered better in writing. Dialogues are used to connect with meaningful ideas. Meaningful dialogues expose the ability to express ideas. Leaders with the merits they share, may be the authors themselves, who generate interest in stories by making their dialogue available. Writing provides a dialogue exposure to merit the importance of ideas.

Writing exposes the quality of information. Writing is like a guarantee of quality to account for leading dialogues. A writer provides a guarantee of quality with the expression made by the author with the owner offering their story.

Do not write to deject use or make conjectural absolutes.

A writer exposes the dialogue they author to audiences whom obtain a right to provide the idea of expression shared through the ownership of their story. Writing in licensed order by the author establishes ownership. The author provide the audience a right to value their stories by sharing the original idea owned in writing.

Writing occurs to provide information in order of a format. The format of order to offer the reason writing provides merits the use of information. Write, to express ideas, inform, measure.